

Map of -
"The Town of Unnie BEE," where all the houses were built like eggs - and
They all had diamonds and precious stones carving them. The whole town sparkled
it was always day light

THE PLANET UNNIE BEE

By Bette Ziakin

THE PLANET UNNIE BEE

Today we are traveling in the sky to a planet called UNNIE BEE. This planet is a land much different than our land. It is far, far away from us. But on a really dark night when the stars are all out, we can look up and pick up the very brightest light. That will be the planet Unnie Bee.

There are rolling hills with bright green grass, a mossy soft grass growing on them. The sky in Unnie Bee is always a bright blue. The whole atmosphere takes on a bright sunny glow.

The houses on Unnie Bee are tiny because the people living on the planet are very tiny people. The inhabitants are called Unnies just as the Martians come from Mars the Unnies are from Unnie Bee.

The Unnies are happy, friendly people. They love to have fun. They believe in keeping spotlessly clean and obeying the golden rule (Do unto others as you would have them do unto you).

The ruler of the planet is called THE MOOP OF MEEPIE. The streets are painted white with tiny store fronts that are shaped like eggs.

The Unnies have special crews of Unnies that scrub the streets each day so they just shine and are always clean and white.

The storefronts are studded with tiny diamonds that sparkle and shine. These diamonds are all around the egg shaped buildings.

The tiny doors and windows look like tiny smiling faces. The streets are paved with hundreds of genuine jewels: rubies, sapphires, pearls and many other rare stones.

The entire planet glows and sparkles because love lies there. The happiness all over the little town called Conduction Hich shines like the stars. Happiness is a shiny brilliance. Happiness radiates love. These people know that Happiness is next to Godliness.

I have told you a wee bit about the planet Unnie Bee.

NOW WE WILL TRAVELL!!!!

ON TO CHAPTER ONE

THE PLANET UNNIE BEE

Chapter One

The Unnie Bee planet voted one day to take a look at the planet Earth. The council voted to build an earthship and travel to the earth. The spaceship would have the shape of their homes that was the shape of an egg. They would build the ship and layer it with precious stones.

The MOOP OF MEEPIE told the people of the town of Conduction Hitch on the planet Unnie Bee that he would personally select three space men for the journey. These men must be of the best character as they would be the examples of the people of Unnie Bee for the people of the earth to see. These men would be religious men who believed in the Triune of God and the teachings of Jesus Christ. These men would represent the planet Unnie Bee so that the people on earth would realize that other worlds exist and that these worlds are good worlds.

The MOOP OF MEEPIE very carefully made his choices.

The first man to be chosen was a man named Boongie. Boongie was a chubby little fellow with a great big smile. He was a good family man with an even dozen children to his support and credit. Boongie had an equally chubby wife whose name was Ultie. The children's ages ranged from eight to twenty. This was a most loving family, loving one another and caring for one another.

When the MOOP OF MEEPIE first asked Boongie to be his spaceman to earth, Ultie with usually such a happy face, shed a tear and said, "Oh, Dear! The children and I will be so lonely without Boongie." Ultie knew that the great God Jehovah of the world universe would be right there with him and would protect him. She also knew that God would send a host of angels with them.

So it was readied that Boongie would go.

The second choice of the MOOP OF MEEPIE was a thin little man whose name was FERDIDDLE. Ferdiddle had the tiniest little bald head and an extremely kind face. Although he didn't smile as much as Boongie, he smiled from within and thus he radiated love about him. The people of Conditiction Hitch loved him because he walked around his fellow men with a heart of pure gold. Ferdiddle did kind deeds for everyone and his words were gentle and, oh, so kind. Ferdiddle did kind deeds for everyone and his words were gentle and oh so kind. This man walked a close walk with the Savior.

The wife of Ferdiddle was ELLIBAH. Ellibah had given birth to four children. These children were all grown up with families of their own. As Ellibah sat rocking one night, God required her presence with Him in Heaven. So her soul soured to Heaven to be with God and her tiny body was laid to rest on a star.

Ferdiddle welcomed the chance to go to earth as he missed his wife Ellibath so much. Ferdiddle would go with Boongie, travel to planet Earth, and study how the earth people lived in comparison with people on Unnie Bee. This would keep his mind busy for he missed Ellibah so much.

The third man to be chosen was NIBGIP. Nibgip was a school teacher in the town of Conditiction Hitch on the planet Unnie Bee. Nibgip was a writer of both children and adult stories. He had traveled to many of the towns and planets and led the people in civic as well as religious topics.

Nibgip had a lovely wife whose name was Naio. This couple had one child named CLAYMO. Claymo was so excited to have her father have the honor of being chosen by the MOOP OF MEEPIE to go on such a marvelous trip. She wished so much that she was a spaceman and could go along.

Naio was happy for her husband although she knew how much she would miss him. She was very proud of him. There would be so much to learn on a trip like this. Claymo loved to draw pictures of her family. Now when daddy came home he could bring her pictures of the earth people and then she would draw them. She could hardly wait for that day.

The MOOP OF MEEPIE called a special meeting that very night. All the people of Conditiction Hitch on the planet UNNI BEE were asked to attend the meeting. This was to be a very special meeting and the whole town and even people in the country were so excited to attend that they bathed and put on their most beautiful clothing and hurried to get ready to go. There were so many in attendance that they decided to use the town square. Way too many to go into the town hall. This was a festive occasion. The streets were loaded with huge bouquets of flowers and ribbons. The occasion was so special and all were so excited. The crowd began to sing, "A trip to earth, a trip to earth. Praise our Great God." Now the planet they had seen through binoculars for so many years would be a reality. Praise, praise the Lord.

The three spacemen were dressed in their tiny space suits, all excited and ready to leave. The MOOP OF MEEPIE led the people in prayer. All the people of UNNIE BEE stood and watched as Boogie, FerDiddle, and NibGip boarded their tiny bejeweled egg shaped ship. The diamonds and jewels were so bright that the whole area around was illuminated and the people had to shade their eyes as the brightness was so intense. This was a glorious sight to behold as the tiny spaceship took off and began its flight. Up, up, up. Then as it dropped out of sight all the people in one voice shouted, "TAGY GIWY!!!!" (Which is to say, "THE ANGELS GUARD YOU; GOD IS WITH YOU)

SO, OFF TO EARTH!!!!!!

THE PLANET UNNIE BEE

Chapter Two

At 6:00am in December, 1984, the shining spaceship was hovering in the air about a thousand feet above a cow pasture in the earth town of Covervan, in the suburb of Burgvenser. The millions of tiny bright lights illuminated the ship as it looked down on the field below. The lights from above caused an eerie feeling below and six eyes gazed down from the ship. Those of Boongie, FerDiddle, and NibGip.

A lady was sleeping peacefully in the second story bedroom of the farm house below. As she slept the many sparkling brilliant diamonds reflecting in her window beamed onto her face and thus caused her to awaken. She looked out the window and up to the lights where her eyes looked directly at the spaceship. "Oh my," she exclaimed, "What an amazing sight!" This awakened her completely and she got up and watched the ship as it hovered above her house. She awakened her husband and together they watched the new and the strange sight.

The lady's name was HERMINE. Hermine put her glasses on so she could see them even closer. She got out her binoculars and looked out and up again. Hermine and her husband RETEP couldn't pull themselves away from the window.

It was twenty past six. Hermine went downstairs while Retep got dressed to go to work. She turned on the lights, then she opened the door, stepped outside, and looked up. The three spacemen saw her. This early morning earth women with her hair done up with those big things that looked to them like machines, and her funny night dress. This person was just too much so they became frightened and took instant flight.

THE PLANET UNNIE BEE

Chapter Three

Boongie, FerDiddle and NibGip decided they would fly into the city and just soar around. This way they could watch the earth people and hopefully the people would not see them. Up to now they have been scared by an earth lady who had her hair up in funny things, they later learned were curlers.

They had observed a farmhouse with many geese and ducks, so now they were off to new adventures. The tiny trio headed towards the south "Oh look there" said Boongie "There is a window we can fly low and look into". They flew down really low and took out their spy tube and looked into the window. It was the window of a little boy whose name was TOBY.

"What is he doing?" asked FerDiddle. Toby had taken a small box with little sticks in it. "The sticks have bright red color on the end of each one," observed NibGip. "Look! Now little Toby was striking the little stick and it went proof!" exclaimed Boongie. "Oh My! What is that huge burst and now all that white smoke?"

Toby was screaming then and his curtains were on fire. He began to cry and scream really loud! All of a sudden, a wail of a siren was heard and the trio saw their first bright red fire truck come rushing down the street. There were people coming out of their houses and everyone looked terribly weird. "What a large commotion," said FerDiddle. NibGip couldn't believe what he was seeing. One little boy causing all this trouble as he was sitting in his room. He had so many toys to play with but he had sneaked his father's matches and started a lot of trouble and a terrible danger to himself and his home.

The three agreed that on their planet Unnie Bee the children would never think of playing with matches as they were forbidden and their children had to do as their parents told them or they would be disciplined. The three spacemen watched in total disbelief as the firemen put out the fire and bandaged the hand of little Toby. They watched also as the firemen took Toby aside, and they turned up a tube they had to hear with and listened as the firemen told Toby about how bad it is to play with matches, especially after your parents tell you not to. Toby was crying and the three knew that he felt really sad, but they also knew that it could have been a lot worse. The three flew off to see more of earth and its people.

THE PLANET UNNIE BEE

Chapter Four

Boongie, FerDiddle and NibGip were not happy to fly away from that commotion. As they flew, they called the Moop of Meepie by earth to space radio. They called the operator in the town of Condition Hitch in the land of Unnie Bee and asked her to put them on the phone of the Meep which she did at once. FerDiddle relayed the story of the little boy named Toby and how he had been a bad boy and played with the matches that were forbidden and all the trouble he caused, even burning himself on his tiny hand. The Moop listened and sadly shook his head as he wished for a happy first story from the earth. He instructed them to continue on and report back to him as they found interesting stories from earth.

The very next day the three were spacing around the country over an old farmhouse. There were several children out in the yard, one little boy was busy hoeing in the garden for his mommie, while another child was feeding the chickens with grain and singing a song to them as they pecked at their food. Yet another child was helping his father fix a fence that was broken. Through the window, they watched a girl doing the dishes and actually singing while she worked. The mother and the father were both smiling and all look so perfect and full of love and happiness. Their family was doing the will of the Lord and they were being blessed.

These people the three decided were people that followed their belief in God, they went to their place of worship on their day of rest, and were good citizens also in the community in which they lived. This was so good to see and the three knew that on the earth there were many homes just like this one where parents and children respected each other and had happy lives.

On they went into the city. The visit to the farm had not taken much time, so they had a nice long day ahead of them.

The city here on earth was so different. They parked their spaceship under a rock at the entrance to the town and climbed out. They were invisible to the earth people. (Unnies can make themselves invisible.) They walked down the street and looked here and there without being seen. They reached the city park. "Oh, look!," cried Boongie. "There is an earth lady with a big funny basket on wheels and there is an earth baby inside.” The three watched and laughed as the lady walked by them. What a strange way to carry their children. In Unnie Bee they have no buggies to carry their babies for when the babies are born, they are so tiny that they are placed on the petal of a flower and when they are older they are tied gently on the wings of a pet bee who carries the Unnie babies around for the mothers.

NibGip saw something that caused him to stop and turn quickly to FerDiddle and say, “SHHH, look! What is that little boy taking from that man?” As they watched, a man who had been standing behind a tree and motioning to a small boy with a piece of candy in his hand stepped toward the boy. The boy took the candy and the man snatched the child and led him away. The trio watched as a lady came rushing around the corner screaming, “Andy, Andy!” Oh Andy, where is my boy? Just then a car raced past taking the small boy. He was being kidnapped by a very bad wicked man. The lady was filled with panic and was screaming while another lady with a child was trying to comfort her. The police were called and immediately began looking for clues, but only one of Andy’s little gloves was found lying on the ground.

The lady kept saying over and over how she had told Andy never to take anything from a stranger as this very thing can so easily happen.

The spacemen were not happy again today with this sighting. As they talked, they discussed that on UNNIE BEE the children listen, oh so carefully, to what their mothers say and they obey their mothers and fathers. This saves a lot of heartache for everyone.

So far the spacemen were not impressed with earth people. They began to feel that perhaps the children on earth had too much use of their opinions too early and not enough control by their parents. Maybe more exposure to God and less to material goodies would help these earth children.

On the planet Unnie Bee the children went to Sunday school and honored the one day set aside for church and doing nice things for people in need. This caused the Unnie children to focus on the needs of others and not just their own wantings. Once again the eyes of the Moop were sad and a tear dropped as he heard the problems of the many stories the spacemen were telling him of children in trouble.

THE PLANET UNNIE BEE

Chapter Five

Today we will concentrate on what the grownup people on this planet are doing, said Boongie. “First, let’s watch the early morning TV,” Boongie suggested. The three spacemen sat down to the early morning channel. The news and the weather, robberies, several murders, people so upset with the nation’s president, complaints about the electricity and water company, the school board and whatever they could gather up. The three clicked the TV off.

Next they explored the newspaper. It was even worse.

“Let’s go back to the spaceship and hurry back home quickly,” said FerDiddle. “This is all so terrible.” “No,” said Boongie. “This world must have something that is good and that does not frighten us. We must find the good of the earth.” “I feel we may have just stumbled into the wrong places so we must go back and find the good in this world.”

And so the three little spacemen from Planet Unnie Bee and the town of Conduction Hitch began their quest for the good on planet Earth.

THE PLANET UNNIE BEE

Chapter Six

The three spacemen went back into town as Boongie would have it no other way. He wanted to find the good reports from the planet Earth. He was not happy to only send sad reports back to his planet and to the ruler, the Moop of Meepie.

They once again parked their spaceship in a safe place and began to walk around the town. It was a beautiful day and the shops all looked most inviting. All the goodies were placed around and some shops even had outdoor displays. The people seemed to enjoy buying and selling the items. "So far, so good," FerDiddle thought as he continued with the other two down the street.

What is that heavenly smell? They asked each other as they neared the hamburger stand. "Oh, what a delicious aroma." It says, french fries, hamburgers, and cokes. The waiter couldn't see them as they placed their money on the counter and helped themselves. The guy at the counter watched as the money for exactly three sets of burgers, fries, and cokes was placed by invisible hands and the gal that was making the food jumped aside and screamed as the hamburgers walked out the door. The three laughed but they were so hungry that was the only way they could be served. The lunch was enjoyed so very much, and FerDiddle said, "We should get this product on our planet as it is the best food that I have ever eaten."

As the trio was sitting on a bench in the park near an entrance to the street, an elderly lady appeared at the corner. The lady had a cane and she appeared to be very old and afraid to venture out into the street. A small boy began to cross the street. Then he looked back at the lady, turned around, and gave her his hand and led her safely across the street. He had asked if he could help her and she had happily accepted and this was a very special nice boy who had done a very nice deed.

The three were so happy they had begun to find some really nice happenings.

Walking on they observed a group of children with large plastic bags who were walking toward them. As the children walked, they picked up little scraps of paper and junk that people had carelessly thrown away. They had noticed that people everywhere threw junk on the streets out of car windows, and as they walked down the street they would throw down gum wrappers, candy wrappers, anything just went onto the street. The spacemen found this a nasty habit. People in Unnie Bee never would think of making their town messy with garbage all around.

The three were happy to see the clean-up the kids were doing. Soon their town would shine like the streets of Unnie.

“Oh look,” FerDiddle said. “There is a kitty up in that tree and it can’t get down.” A boy in the group who were cleaning the street also saw the plight of the animal. He ran over and climbed the tree. He brought the kitty down amid the cheers of his friends. The kitty purred and kissed his hand.

This was another nice deed that the earth child had done.

They went on and found many more wonderful happenings about the planet Earth that they would report to the Moop of Meepie. All these things would make him understand the earth and its people.

The group followed the children as they walked along cleaning. The spacemen enjoyed watching them make the city shine like their own town Unnie.

As they walked, the group passed a home where a father was carrying in the groceries, and his children were busy helping him. “This is good,” Boongie told the other two. “It is now time to return to our planet for we have explored both the good and the bad on the planet Earth and we are agreed that all is fine on this earth so we can go back home and apply some of what we have seen to our own planet (especially the hamburgers and the fries).”

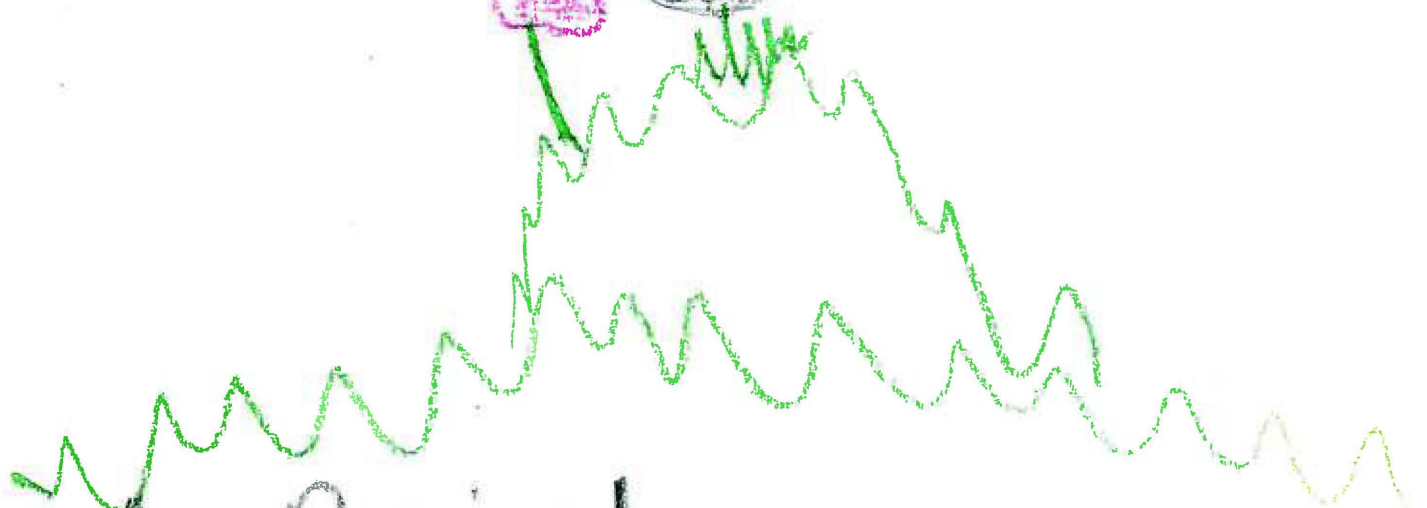

Now the three Boongie, FerDiddle and NibGip were ready to return to the planet Unnie Bee and the town of Conduction Hitch. They were beginning to miss their families for they had been gone a long time. They were so happy to be going home, but now that they had seen earth they would look forward to coming back here some day. On the next visit it would be nice to make it so the people of the earth would know that they were there and could see them. The only problem was that they were so small that earth people would probably not notice them or think of them as children.

After a quick call to the Moop they packed their tiny bags and climbed into their ship. As they walked up and on to the tiny ship, they looked back and all three smiled. They recalled both the good and the bad about their trip or we should say their earth tour.

They were truly happy to have seen earth, but they were happiest of all about the one great truth – ALL PEOPLE ON BOTH UNNIE BEE AND THE EARTH WORSHIPED THE SAME GREAT GOD!!!!

AWAY THE THREE SAILED IN THE BRIGHT MORNING SUN – BACK TO THE PLANET UNNIE BEE.

A Rainbow